COVID-19 Impact on Education

Irvine, CA —Monday, August 17, 2020

While many critical needs are being addressed during the pandemic, an important factor to keep in mind is education. The COVID-19 crisis has resulted in many schools all over the world closing their doors to students.

Information Technology and Instructional Learning shapes all of us young and old. Education plays a large role in the way we develop. If education is affected, it can have a detrimental impact on children and young adults who are looking to enhance their knowledge and quality of life for many generations to come.

The good news is that this does not mean the end of education. Educational institutions are utilizing Information Technology and Computers to create alternative learning pathways through digital technologies and online education resources.

Students and adults are using video calls, file sharing, remote access to a learning center, and platforms enable students and teachers of all age groups to cooperate and ensure that interruption to education is as limited as possible.

The timely release of “Keep Your Personal Computer Running Like New” by Avram Grossman provides a very useful resource to help parents and students to become Computer savvy. This Personal Computer guide is a great resource to help avoid the
